Past, Present & Futures: Chicago Mercantile Exchange

October 2008, Fort Lauderdale, FL — Write Stuff Enterprises proudly announces the release of Past, Present & Futures: Chicago Mercantile Exchange by Jeffrey L. Rodengen, renowned author, historian, and columnist.

Past, Present & Futures: Chicago Mercantile Exchange celebrates the rich history of a renegade futures exchange formed in 1919 with an innovative spirit and the impetus to someday trade commodities other than butter and eggs.

Reshaping the futures industry with its “free markets for free men” ideals, Chicago Mercantile Exchange has a long history of ceaseless innovation, including the creation of the world’s first financial-futures contracts, the introduction of CME Eurodollar futures and CME E-mini equity products, and the development of CME Globex, the first global electronic trading platform for futures and options.

With the landmark acquisition of the Chicago Board of Trade in 2007, the new entity called CME Group became the largest, most diverse derivatives exchange in the world. Valued at $29 billion with average daily trading volume of nearly 9 million contracts and a national value of $4.2 trillion per day, CME Group serves the risk-management needs of customers around the globe and offers the widest range of benchmark products available on any exchange.

Past, Present & Futures: Chicago Mercantile Exchange provides a compelling, accurate, and in-depth account of how CME evolved to attain its coveted leadership position in the highly competitive financial and commodities exchange sector.
